

Vince had prominent supporting roles in a number of major films, including a turn as a dim witted Ku Klux Klan member in Mississippi Burning, Lee Bowers in JFK, and the main character's best friend in Nobody's Fool. He had his first lead role in James Mangold's independent film Heavy, playing a sweet, silent, overweight cook harboring a crush on a waitress (Liv Tyler).

Vince often alternates roles of both heroic and villainous characters, like a lovable small town pub owner in Beautiful Girls, a serial killer with multiple personalities in Identity (a second collaboration with director Mangold), the disheveled gossip columnist in Simone, and a pompous sheriff in Nurse Betty. He can also be seen in Love from Ground Zero as Walter. Vince also played a southern cop in Angel Heart, a kidnappers assistant in Trapped, and a deputy prison warden in Oliver Stone's Natural Born Killer.
